CHURCH CONDEMNS WAR

In a resolution passed recently by the sub-executive of the general council of The United Church of Canada, all military practices directed against non-combatants were condemned. The resolution urged the government of Canada to associate itself with all efforts of the League of Nations, first, to isolate the present struggle; second, to bring it to an end.

The resolution declared that the question of boycotting Japan was one which the government must seriously consider and decide, "yet The United Church wishes to assure the government that it will support any organized international plan which will vindicate the principles of law and order agreed between nations, even if such action calls for great sacrifice on the part of our people."

Preamble to the resolution passed by the sub-executive reads: "Whereas it is our responsibility as Christians to make clear our attitude in the present tragic hostilities in China, therefore, be it resolved: . . ."

Rev. Gordon A. Sisco, secretary, stated: "The need of expressing judgment by The United Church of Canada on the Sino-Japanese situation arises from the fact that organizations in Canada on which the church is represented are pushing the government for an embargo of war materials against Japan. Local organizations throughout the church have been pressed to take a stand on this question. The United Church as a whole is not only concerned in the matter from the standpoint of effective peace, but has to consider its missionary work in both China and Japan."

Mrs. John Patterson is still a patient in the local hospital.

DIXON-ROYLE NUPTIALS

An interesting wedding ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents on Monday evening, when Helen Agnes, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Royle, of Blairmore, became the bride of Constable Harry M. Dixon, R.C.M.P., of Saskatoon, Sask.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. E. Larke, pastor of Central United church. The bride, attired in an Alice-blue gown and wearing a Juliet cap of pearls and carrying a bouquet of bronze mums, looked charming as she entered the room with her father to the strains of the wedding march played by Mr. Harold Marks. She was given in marriage by her father. Miss Peggy Crichton, of Hillcrest, acted as bridesmaid. She wore a blue silk gown and carried a sheaf of asters for the occasion. Little Peggy Kerr, of Edmonton, acted as flower girl and sprinkled flower petals in the path of the bride. Mr. Roy Upton supported the groom.

Following the ceremony, about forty invited guests sat to a wedding supper served at the nearby home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Womersley. The supper room was tastefully decorated with flowers, autumn leaves and wedding bells. The bride's table was centred with a two-tiered wedding cake.

Immediately following the reception, the happy young couple left by auto for eastern points, and will shortly take up residence in Saskatoon.

MINE INSPECTOR HALL TRANSFERRED TO LETHBRIDGE

W. E. G. Hall, who for a number of years has been district mines inspector for this section of Alberta, has been appointed to take the place of J. B. de Hart, who in turn has accepted a position with the provincial school of technology and art at Calgary.

Mr. Hall was born in Springfield, Nova Scotia, and graduated in mining from Dalhousie University. Coming west, he was engineer with the McGillivray Creek Coal & Coke Company at Coleman from 1918 to 1927. From that year until 1934 he was manager of the Midland Coal Co. at Drumheller, and since then has been district mines inspector in The Pass.

Dave B. Young has been appointed to succeed Mr. Hall here. Since early this year, Mr. Young has been in the employ of the International Coal & Coke Co. at Coleman.

Mr. and Mrs. Hall will shortly move to Lethbridge.

Carrie Jensen, of Raymond, has been a visitor with friends in Blairmore.

A happy celebration of their daughter's 21st birthday was held on November 7th by Mr. and Mrs. E. W. E. Whiteside, when they entertained about forty of Bernice's friends at their home. Dancing, singing and a general spirit of good cheer prevailed. The guests presented Bernice with a lovely brown suede purse and a pair of gloves, and united wishes of all for many happy returns. Mr. and Mrs. Peterson, grandparents, were among the guests present—Strathmore Standard.

At this season of the year it would be well for farmers and others who may be receiving tempting offers from coast concerns for their turkeys, etc., to before shipping make enquiries as to the reliability of those to whom they are shipping. New firms are arising, and others have a change of name each year for this seasonal trade, and as the protection of the farmer is of paramount importance, they should exercise care as to the destination of their shipments. In past years, many have been unable to collect for their shipments.

HIT AND RUN VICTIM EXPIRES AT COLEMAN

Robert Burns, who with a chum was knocked down by a hit-and-run car near the West Coleman bluff on Saturday night last, passed away in the Coleman hospital at 11:20 on Thursday forenoon.

Burns was 55 years of age, and a long-time resident of Coleman. His wife predeceased him in 1928. William Burns, former mayor of Coleman, and at present an engineer with the East Kootenay Power Co. at Sentinel, is a brother.

As we go to press funeral arrangements have not been completed, but in all probability will be held Sunday. Burns suffered a compound fracture of a leg and internal injuries.

COLEMAN MAN SUICIDES

Joseph Lysek, proprietor of a fruit and confectionery store in Coleman, is dead of a bullet wound, said to have been self-inflicted.

Lysek was owner of the car alleged to have hit Robert Burns in West Coleman on Saturday night. It is believed that upon receiving word that Burns had died in hospital, he took this means of ending it all.

No charges had been laid against Lysek, but a piece of headlight lens found on the spot where Burns and a companion were hit, resulted in the identity of the car. Lysek is believed to have placed the muzzle of the rifle in his mouth and pulled the trigger. The shooting took place in the kitchen of his home. He leaves a wife and two small children.

As it is considered a clear case of suicide, no inquest will be held.

REV. OLIVER JACKSON, UNITED CHURCH LEADER, DROWNS IN STORM

The United Church of Canada lost one of its most valuable ministerial leaders in the death of Rev. Oliver Jackson, B.D., O.B.E., Superintendent of Home Missions and Secretary of Christian Education in Newfoundland. Rev. Mr. Jackson and a student missionary, Wallace J. Harris, were drowned during a storm when their small vessel capsized while visiting outlying missions in Newfoundland.

Word of the tragic deaths was received in Toronto by Rev. Dr. R. B. Cochrane, secretary of the Board of Home Missions. Details were meagre, beyond the information that both bodies had been recovered.

Rev. Mr. Jackson has been in Newfoundland 19 years. He graduated from Montreal Theological College. He was about 50 years of age and is survived by his widow and four children.

Rev. Oliver Jackson was in Toronto last April, attending the annual meeting of the Board of Home Missions. When Right Rev. Dr. Peter Bryce visited Newfoundland last spring, Mr. Jackson welcomed the moderator and guided him in his visit to many parts of Newfoundland.

Commenting on the tragedy, Dr. Cochrane said: "Not only Newfoundland, but the whole of Canada has suffered a great loss in the death of this church leader. He made a valuable contribution to the economic, social, educational and religious life of Newfoundland." During King George the Fifth's Jubilee celebrations, Mr. Jackson was made an O.B.E. for services rendered.

If the ideas of that man Ainsley, M.P.P., were to be followed, that no one should have to work, and that all should receive a bonus from nothing of $25 or more a month, even our universities, colleges and schools could be dispensed with. But, in the natural course of events, every little community would require its little lunatic asylum, into which those with little promise of getting beyond the 13-year-old grade of mentality could be placed for safekeeping.

BELLEVUE HAPPENINGS

The United church was filled on Thursday last, November 11th, to hear a most impressive service delivered by Rev. Upton. Preceding and following the two minutes silence, Mr. Geo. Goodwin sounded the "Last Post" and "Reveille." Mrs. R. Upton, accompanied by Miss Hilda Padgett at the organ, sang "In Flanders Field." The choir then rendered an appropriate number. Following this service many journeyed to the cenotaph at Frank, where a service was also held.

The annual Armistice dance, held under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary of the B.E.S.L., was very largely attended, with the Hostess Hesters pleasing very much the large crowd with the old war songs and modern songs.

Mrs. Joe Taborski and children returned this week from several weeks' visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Winarski, of Nelson, B.C. Mrs. D. Perry, of Strathmore, is visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. D. T. Hutton.

Mr. Murray Sutherland, of High River, spent the week end visiting his father here.

Mrs. E. Rees spent the week end visiting her daughter, Peggy, in Lethbridge.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Fidenato and daughter Netel, accompanied by Miss Casagrande, of Hillcrest, left on Monday night for California, where they expect to stay for some time.

Miss Dorothy Glover has accepted a position as school teacher and left on Thursday afternoon for her new school, some 60 miles west of Edmonton.

The Bellevue United church was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Sunday at 12 noon, when Doris Dell, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Chiaviano, became the bride of Lutho Hugo Vieweger, of Waterways, Alberta, Rev. Upton officiating. To the strains of the wedding march, played by Mrs. R. Upton, the bride entered the church on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage, beautifully gowned in a floor length dress of white lace over taffeta, with an Elizabethan collar, and Juliet cap of white beads, and carrying a beautiful bouquet of roses and calla lilies.

She was attended by her two sisters, Misses Enes and Esther Chiaviano. Miss Enes wearing a floor length dress of white lace over taffeta, and carried a bouquet of mums and carnations; while Miss Esther's dress was of blue point d'espi over blue taffeta; she also carried a bouquet of mums and carnations. During the signing of the register the choir, of which the bride is a former member, very nicely sang "O Perfect Love." Following the service a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where a lovely dinner was served to only immediate friends and relatives of the bride and groom. Later in the afternoon the happy couple left by car for their new home at Waterways. The best wishes of the community go with them to their new home.

The pie social held in the church parlors on Tuesday evening by the members of the choir, was very well attended.

Mr. G. W. Cousins sustained rather painful injuries to his foot while following his employment in the mine. He is resting comfortably in the Reinhorn Hospital.

HILLCREST HAPPENINGS

A secret ballot was taken on Tuesday to determine whether the employees of Hillcrest Collieries, Limited, should form a local of the United Mine Workers of America. The vote resulted 171 for and 92 against.

Mrs. B. Carter returned this week from Great Falls, Montana, where she had been visiting with her daughter, Gwyn Hamalok, of Cranbrook, spent

LOCAL UNITED CHURCH MARKS ANNIVERSARY

An unusually large audience greeted Rev. R. Magowan as guest speaker at the anniversary service at the United church on Sunday evening. Added features of the service were solos by two brilliant Pincher Creek vocalists, Mr. A. B. McMurdo and Miss Marion Allison, who accompanied Mr. Magowan. The junior girls' choir and the junior orchestra were also on hand in full force. Mr. Magowan delivered a forceful and appropriate discourse.

Other parts of the province were boasting last week end of a fall of snow ranging from one to three inches. The Crown's Nest Pass—or at least Blairmore—had 14 inches on the level on Sunday at noon.

A few days here last week visiting her parents.

A number of friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Mackie in celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding. The guests presented Mrs. Mackie with a handsome gift. At what prizes went to Mrs. P. Haggerty, first, and Mrs. J. Gordon, second.

The Big Interests

One is sometimes tempted to wonder why those so-called old fashioned virtues—thrift, hard work, prudence and integrity, are so frequently mentioned at nowadays and discounted as something that is out-moded and therefore, if not actually to be abhorred, at least something to be ashamed of.

Despite the fact that history, and particularly comparatively recent history, abounds with the names of men who from little or nothing have built up great industries, have risen to wealth or power, by the application of these virtues, plus ability and foresight, it would appear as if they were to be condemned, and the capitalistic "system" which in combination with a democratic form of government gives the poor boy an opportunity to rise from the ranks ought to be relegated to the ash heap, if some proponents of upheaval are to be believed.

Without holding any particular brief for capitalism and the capitalists one cannot help but deplore a good deal of the loose talk which is indulged in, all too frequently, in which the capitalist is held up as the foe of the common man and such terms as "the big interests" and the "big boys" are used to express contempt. If not hated, for those who have got along in a competitive world by their own efforts; and in which such slogans (not borne out by statistics in the United States and Canada) "the rich are becoming richer and the poor are becoming poorer," pass for currency and are accepted by some as gospel.

It would almost seem as if some of the facts are forgotten; that, for instance, without capital labor could achieve nothing of consequence; that the co-operative efforts of capital and labor have made the luxuries of yesterday the necessities of to-day and that inevitably the luxuries of to-day will become the necessities of tomorrow and that nowhere in the world have these achievements approached the zenith as they have in the countries of this continent where free rein has been given to individual effort under a democratic, capital-labor system to an extent as yet unrealized elsewhere in actual practice.

Citing a number of illustrations of men who have risen to important posts in industry, J. Lambert Payne writes in the Ottawa Journal refers, among many others, to Walter P. Chrysler, whose story is an extraordinary tribute to these old fashioned virtues, and the late John R. Booth, of Ottawa, and goes on to say:

"Instead of wealth being in the hands of a predatory few, as is often alleged, its diffusion is the salient fact of our time. As a matter of fact, in Canada, it is literally in the hands of millions. . . There is not a trace of cohesion or co-operation among the capitalists, (referring to allegations that the big interests combine to thwart the will of the people). Chrysler and Booth had to meet strenuous rivalry at every step in their progress; and that reason, so palatable to the judicial mind, we use a misleading word when speak of capitalism as 'a system'."

"Moreover," as Mr. Payne points out, "the excretion of capitalism in certain quarters ignores the fact that it has existed since organized society began, and," he concludes, "will likely persist. Commerce is impossible without it."

And not in industry alone has capital, so far in the history of the world, been one of the two essential factors to civilized progress, but it is also an important element in agriculture. Every farmer is himself an illustration of the co-operative effect of capital and labor, for every farmer is both a capitalist and a laborer. Every man who purchases a half section of land and a line of implements and power to operate them becomes a capitalist and when, in addition to that, he hires a man to operate some of his machinery he places himself in the category of a capitalist employer of labor.

And every farmer who has employed one or more men knows that there must be co-operation and accord between himself and his hired man if both, or either, are to attain maximum results.

It has often been said that there is nothing new under the sun and that is true of efforts to decry capitalists and capitalism. The same cry has been raised of every depression which has struck industry on the North American continent as was aptly pointed out, with examples, in a recent issue of a popular magazine.

If past history is to be regarded as a guide, it is probably fairly safe to assume that with the return of prosperity, the bailing of what is regarded as "the big interests" will disappear as people become more occupied with efforts to advance their own interests, provided that while they are doing so they are not unmindful of their obligations to others.

In the agricultural west which has been so hard hit recently and in those sections which are still facing the dire results of prolonged drought, the disappearance of fire at capital may be retarded, but the time will in all probability come when the rank and file will look back in retrospect and wonder what it was all about.

London's Passenger Trains

Over 7,000 Arrive And Leave Terminals Every Day

The British Railways Press office announces that over 7,000 passenger trains arrive and leave London's seven main line terminals every day, an average of five trains a minute. There are in Britain nearly twice as many passenger and freight trains for every mile of track as there are in France, and more than five times as many as there are in the United States.—Fort Arthur News-Chronicle.

Aide-de-Camp To Lord Tweedsmuir To Rejoin Royal Navy
Lieutenant S. G. Rivers-Smith has relinquished his post as aide-de-camp to the governor-general and left for England to rejoin the royal navy, which he left for service with Lord Tweedsmuir.

Rivers-Smith chose to leave his post at Ottawa one year before his term expired, feeling he would lose contact with developments in the navy if he remained longer.

Last summer Rivers-Smith accompanied the governor-general on the complete itinerary of his tour through the northwest and British Columbia. He was the only member of Lord Tweedsmuir's staff who covered the whole journey of more than 10,000 miles.

His successor is Lieut. R. Scott, also of the royal navy.

Filing Of Fingerprints

Urges Voluntary Filing By The General Public
Voluntary filing of fingerprints by the general public with police should be encouraged, report of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, recently printed, states. Many instances of the value of fingerprints for identification purposes, apart from criminal investigations, have come to light.

"It is certain that at least the travelling public (and who is not a traveller) should be encouraged to file their prints with us for use in case of misfortune," wrote Inspector W. W. Watson, of the fingerprint section.

"During the year we identified two unfortunate simply because of their past criminal records. In one instance we were able to satisfy an insurance company, thus promptly benefitting the beneficiary."

"Only recently a gentleman of periodic loss of memory condition filed his impressions with us. Possibly much worry would have been saved in numerous other instances if imprints of certain individuals were available for comparison purposes."

The two "unfortunates" referred to were men found dead on railway tracks. One, found at St. Boniface, Man., was identified as Steve Kozicki, whose prints were on record because he had been convicted in Port Arthur for assault. The immigration department had further particulars about the man which enabled steps to be taken to notify relatives in Poland.

The other man was found at Belleville, Ont., and his prints were on file because of some offence. He was found to have been a former resident of Ottawa and his father identified a photograph which was also on file. There was some insurance on his life and his relatives were able to obtain payment.

As usual the fingerprint records of the force were useful in many cases of crime, assisting in the tracing of the records of persons arrested and in directing police to the offenders.

One man was arrested although he took the precaution to wear gloves. A tear on one of the gloves was his undoing. He was Thomas L. Madill and the offence was breaking into a service station at Lindsay, Ont.

An Ultra-Modern School

Opened Recently At Hiford, England, And Accommodates 1,000 Pupils

A new school with the impressive lines of an ultra-modern factory has just been opened in Hiford, England, with accommodation for 1,000 children between 5 and 11.

It is the Torbit Elementary school and it took a year to build and cost nearly $200,000. The school has two halls, a film projection room and wireless equipment to accommodate a loud-speaker in each room. There is a tiny town department, complete with rocking horse, roller-skater and fairy cycle.

A special subway is being built to enable children to pass safely from the south to the north side of the arterial road. The subway will admit directly into the school grounds. Ramps have been provided instead of steps to facilitate the passage of perambulators.

All the class masters in the school are university graduates.

London Times Pays Tribute To Audrey Alexandra Brown

"The Tree of Resurrection" poems by Audrey Alexandra Brown, native of British Columbia, is the subject of an appreciative notice in the Times Literary Supplement. The verses are "untouched by any contemporary fashion," says the reviewer who goes on:

"Her verse is remarkable for its melodious richness and rhythmical ease. Nor is its magic merely verbal or 'escapist.' She can express the eerie, too, very hauntingly in such poems as 'White Bridge' or 'The Enigma.' But she is at her best when she is bringing the past to life in 'The Roman Sentry at Pompeii,' for example, or 'The Tree of Resurrection' or evoking some moment when the hard outlines of actually are dissolved."

Novelist Has Recipes Used By Famous Italian Poisoners

There is a bank in London which has in its vaults secret recipes of all the deadly poisons known to the Borgias, the famous Italian poisoners.

They have been placed there for safety by a woman who is afraid they may get into the hands of the wrong people.

She is Miss Kitty Shannon, novelist, daughter of the late Sir James Shannon, the famous R.A. Sir.

When she decided to write her sixth novel—about the Borgias—Miss Shannon went to Italy to hunt up the poisons they used for inclusion in the book.

Miss Shannon told the Daily Sketch: "I advertised in a Rome paper for somebody who knew the recipes."

"The first thing that happened was that I had a visit from police officials, but I was able to reassure them that I had no evil intentions."

"Then I had a visit from a chemist; in fact, one of my ancestors had prepared poisons for the Borgias. He gave me the recipes for ten different poisons."

"I was appalled by the simplicity of some of them. One, which I dare not reveal, is so simple that it can be prepared from boiling down three different weeds that you tread underfoot any time you go for a country walk. One drop of it will kill in about fifteen minutes."

"And now there is a little difficulty over my book. The poison recipes were to have been included in it; but the publishers are also nervous."

"So some of the Borgias poisons will have to remain secret. They will stay at the bank until I destroy them. They are too big a responsibility."

When The King Intervenes

Young Officers In Royal Service Are Often Helped

Every commission in the British Royal service requires the Royal signature. To facilitate this task, in itself no light one, each commission has, attached to the edge of the paper opposite where the King signs, a little strip of blotting paper. After signing his autograph, the King bends back this attachment and the signature is dried without further trouble.

Like his father, the King intervenes himself personally in all requests of his commission. All court martial judgments, before promulgation, are submitted to him, and often enough King George V. would intervene. When a soldier is charged with a crime, he is brought before the King. He got into money troubles and cashing was recommended, he would on occasion point out that the trouble arose through the youngster joining an expensive regiment, and suggest, instead of cashiering, transference to a less exacting unit.

At least one brigadier-general on the army list to-day owes his military career to such intervention by King George V.—Buffalo Courier-Express.

Well Qualified

"So," said the old general, "you think you would make a good valet for an old wreck like me, do you? I have a glass eye, a wooden leg, and a wax arm that need looking after, not to mention false teeth and so forth."

"Oh, that's all right, sir," replied the applicant, enthusiastically. "I've had lots of experience. I worked for six years in the assembling department of a motor car factory."

Farm Machinery Imports

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Canada's September imports of farm implements and machinery was worth $1,738,849, a large increase over the $800,522 worth in September, 1936. During the first six months of the present fiscal year imports were valued at $10,799,275 against $6,081,160 in the same period the previous fiscal year.

The Word Hydro

Means Something Apart From Electric Power In Britain

In Canada, the word "hydro" usually refers to one of the country's most vital assets, hydro-electric power. It is a different story in Britain, where the people always think of a hotel when "hydro" is mentioned. The word is short for "Hydrophobic," English and Scottish Hydros are usually temperance hotels where water cures are the thing.

Canadians learned something about them during the visit of 22 Scottish hotelkeepers and their wives. The party, organized under the joint auspices of the Scottish Travel Association and the Hotels and Restaurants' Association of Great Britain, spent a day at Ottawa, seeing the Parliament Buildings and other aspects of the capital and making a thorough inspection tour of The Chateau Laurier, where they were entertained to dinner by the Canadian National Railways hotel department.

Two Hydros were represented in the group—one at Peebles and the other at Skelmerfold. Hotel names on the list that seemed particularly romantic to Canadian ears were the Udgade Arms of Machrihanish, the Duke of Gordon Hotel of Kingussie, and the Baile Nicol Jarvie of Aberfoyle. The last is named after a popular Walter Scott character, the magistrate in "Rob Roy."—C.N.R. News Bulletin.

Bar Canadian Nurses

American Officials To Take Steps To Prevent Their Entry To U.S.

James Houghteling, United States immigration commissioner, in a letter made public by the National Nurses' Association, said immediate steps would be taken to prevent the further entry of job-seeking Canadian nurses into the United States.

The association recently protested to Labor Secretary Perkins against what it called the "wholesale" importation of Canadian nurses to hospitals in New York state and elsewhere "to the detriment of qualified graduate American nurses in New York and the entire United States."

The protest was referred to Houghteling, who replied: "I have been examining the records and am inclined to agree with you that the courtesy we have been extending to this class of Canadian visitor has been overdue."

"I am therefore issuing instructions to our officers on the Canadian border that while Canadian nurses made be admitted on visitors' permits for ordinary visits on cases which require temporary entry into the United States, visitors' permits shall no longer be issued for the purpose of enabling Canadian nurses to come into this country to take jobs here."

Westminster is London's most dangerous borough, according to statistics of road accidents, while Stoke Newington is the safest.

Details of the status and its dedication were revealed in New York by Miss Felicity Burnell, niece of the late Mrs. Samuel J. Kitson, widow of the famous British sculptor. Mrs. Kitson, before she died seven months ago, completed the statue her husband started.

Father Bernard R. Hubbard, the "glacier priest," scientist and explorer is responsible for the erection of the statue on the barren rocky eminence rising 900 feet above sea level, 85 miles from Nome.

AT 83 SHE DEFIES RHEUMATISM

After Suffering Acute Pain For Years

Rheumatism first attacked this old lady in 1893. It gradually spread from her arms to other parts of her body. Then she started to take Kruschen Salts, and now she sends the following letter in her own handwriting:

"I have suffered from rheumatism since 1931. At first, I felt acute pain in both arms. I could not sleep for pain. It grew worse and gradually crept down to the tips of my fingers. Next it reached my knees and ankles, which made me quite helpless for a long period. A friend recommended me to take Kruschen Salts. I find they do me more good than any other medicine, I cannot omit it. I've used it. This is my 84th year."—(Mrs.) H.

The pains and stiffness of rheumatism are often caused by deposits of needle-pointed uric acid crystals in the muscles and joints. Kruschen Salts stimulate your liver and kidneys to healthy, regular action, and assist them to get rid of the excess uric acid which is frequently the cause of your suffering.

No Harm Resulted

Woman Worried Over Breakfast She Gave Her Husband

Stanley Ditzel, switchboard operator in the Town Hall at West Orange, New Jersey, received a call from an excited woman who asked for the Board of Health.

"The line is busy, madam," said Mr. Ditzel.

"Oh, you help me, please," she pleaded. "After my husband left for work this morning, I discovered I made a terrible mistake. I gave our dog chopped meat, which I was going to make into patties for my husband's breakfast, and gave my husband paties of my liver and kidney food. What shall I do?"

A dog owner himself, Mr. Ditzel assured her no harm would result. Believed, she explained that neither her husband nor the dog seemed to be any the worse for the error, although she had been worried. She did not give her name.

Erected On Barren Rocky Eminence On Bear Sea

A life-size statue of Christ faces Russia across the Bering sea from the highest point of land on lonely Christ the King Island, erected by the island's population of 190 Roman Catholic Eskimos as a symbol of Christ's love.

NATIONS MARK ANNIVERSARY OF THE GREAT WAR

Ottawa.—The British empire and most of the countries allied to it in the Great War paused on Thursday last to observe the 10th anniversary of the war's closing.

As prayers for peace rose throughout the world, booming guns thronged them in China and Spain; a lunatic married the service at London's cathedral; a bomb exploded in Dublin and terrorism flared in the Holy Land.

The king led the empire's observance of the two minutes' silence in the annual impressive ceremony at the cathedral in Westminster.

In Ottawa Lord Tweedsmuir, governor-general, led service on Parliament Hill while throughout the Dominion similar observances were held at war memorials or in churches.

Appropriate services were held in New Zealand, Australia, the Union of South Africa and India and the British West Indies.

In Dublin an explosion blasted the royal arms off Dublin castle doorway while outside Trinity college a Union Jack was publicly burned by a band of youths.

At Paris the Duke of Windsor, last year central figure at the London ceremony, stayed away from a British Armistice Day church service after the Anglican reverend, Rev. J. L. C. Dart, had said: "I would rather the duke did not attend." Later the vicar apologized.

France held a gigantic military and aerial review, centred around the Arc de Triomphe.

The Arlington cemetery at Washington, where President Roosevelt placed a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier, heard the national commander of the American Legion call for removal of the profit motive from war, an adequate national defence and a "proper policy of neutrality."

Italy's separate armistice had already been observed earlier this month and the 11th was celebrated as the 6th birthday of King Victor Emanuel.

Germany ignored the day.

Plans New Broadcasts

B.B.C. Will Combat Propaganda Programs Of Other Powers

London.—The New East, South Africa and South America will receive first attention in the foreign language radio programs planned by Great Britain to overcome propaganda broadcasts by other powers. It has been learned.

The British short wave programs, which probably will be sent out from the station at Daventry, will use Arabic for the Near East, Afrikaans (a kind of Dutch) for South Africa, and Spanish for South America.

Postmaster-General G. L. Tryon announced in the House of Commons cost of the new service will be paid by the British Broadcasting Corporation.

Answering a question from Lieutenant-Commander Reginald Fletcher, Labor, Major Tryon said a probable consequence of this will be that division of proceeds from the radio tax, part of which goes to B.B.C. and part to the government, will be changed.

Official announcement of details of the new service will be made soon.

Cable From Belgium

Bourgmaster Of Mons Addresses Message To Canadian People

Ottawa.—Prime Minister Mackenzie King received and acknowledged, on behalf of the nation a cable from the bourgmaster of Mons, Belgium, recalling the liberation 19 years ago of the city, just before the signing of the armistice that ended the Great War.

The bourgmaster's message read: "Municipality and citizens of Mons address to Canadian government the expression of their grateful remembrance on the occasion of the anniversary of Mons' liberation by glorious Canadian troops."

Attack On British Consul

Buenos Aires.—Discharge was made of an attack by unknown assailants believed to be bandits on British Consul J. G. Baillie and his wife as they returned to their suburban home from an Armistice anniversary ball. Three shots were fired at the British official's car forcing him to stop, but without injury.

Entry From Saskatchewan

Chicago.—W. L. Porter of Wakaw, Sask., will exhibit in the carlot fat stock contests of the 1937 International Livestock Exposition Nov. 27 to Dec. 4. Porter has entered a carload of Hereford steers.

Desire For Peace

Chamberlain Hopes That World May Be Freed From Curse Of Armaments

London.—Prime Minister Chamberlain voiced anew Great Britain's sincere desire for better relations with Italy and Germany and declared progress toward understanding could be achieved better "by informal discussion than by public declaration."

Britain wished for agreement "on a basis of mutual friendship," he said. Such an understanding "might have far reaching effects in restoring confidence and security to Europe."

Delivering the traditional review by the prime minister of British and foreign affairs to the historic lord mayor's banquet at the Guildhall, the prime minister, surrounded by Empire and international leaders voiced hope that finally the world would be free from the curse of armaments.

Mr. Chamberlain reaffirmed his desire for Anglo-American co-operation and said:

"I regard our relations with the two great powers which are so closely associated now in what is known as the Rome-Berlin axis, I will only say this: It is the sincere desire of His Majesty's government to see those relations firmly established on a basis of mutual friendship and understanding."

The premier acknowledged the world situation was giving Great Britain anxiety.

"I am convinced that the aim of every statesman worthy of the name, to whatever country he belongs, must be the happiness of the people for whom and to whom he is responsible, and in that faith, I assure a way can, and will, be found to free the world from the curse of armaments and the fears that give rise to them, and to open up a happier and wiser future for mankind."

Quebec Padlock Law

Police Raid Offices Of Friends Of The Soviet Union

Montreal.—Striking again under Quebec's new "padlock law" against Communism, provincial police raided the offices of the Friends of the Soviet Union and seized a truckload of literature.

Four men under Detective Jean Gauthier carried away books, pamphlets and other papers from the St. Alexander street premises, but they did not padlock the office, as was done in five raids earlier in the week. No arrests were made.

The Friends of the Soviet Union were in the news about a week ago when Mayor J. Adhemar Raynault, an ardent anti-Communist, banned an F.S.U.-sponsored meeting at which a Russian general was to have spoken. The Friends went to court for an injunction to void the mayor's ban, but lost the fight.

Further police raids on suspected sources of Communist propaganda may be expected in the future, as it was disclosed by Crown Prosecutor Oscar Gagnon.

Warning by Premier Duplessis that the attorney-general's department was "beginning" to enforce the "padlock law" was recalled to newspapermen by Mr. Gagnon. And the prosecutor hinted four raids staged this week on buildings suspected of housing publishers or distributors of Communist literature. The raiding matter was "just a start."

Immigration Figures Up

In Addition Many Canadians Returned From United States

Ottawa.—Canadian immigration from all countries was 9,272 persons in the six months ended September 30, the immigration branch of the department of mines and resources reported. This compared with 7,005 immigrants in the corresponding period of 1936.

In addition 3,115 Canadians returned from United States during that same period this year compared to 2,975 in the corresponding six months of 1936.

Of the immigration total, 1,806 were from the British Isles, 1,262 English, 220 Irish, 362 Scotch and 32 Welsh. This compared with 1,410 a year ago. From the United States came 3,246 compared with 2,835 in the six months a year ago.

Family Of Ramsay MacDonald Decline Offer Of Abbey Funeral

London.—J. Ramsay MacDonald's family declined an offer he be buried in Westminster Abbey.

The sub-dean of the abbey, Canon Vernon Storr, said the family, while appreciative of the abbey authorities' offer, felt they must refuse because they wished burial to take place in MacDonald's native Lossiemouth. A memorial service will be held in the abbey on a date to be decided later.

PROPOSAL MADE FOR A NATIONAL INSURANCE PLAN

Ottawa.—A national system of unemployment insurance to be initiated at the next session of parliament was proposed in a letter sent by Prime Minister Mackenzie King to premiers of the nine provinces.

Agreement of the provinces on an amendment to the British North America Act would be necessary to empower the federal government to enact the necessary legislation and the letter asked the provincial governments to submit their views.

Should the necessary agreement be forthcoming, Mr. King said, the government proposed to seek the constitutional amendment by the customary joint resolution of both houses of parliament addressed to the parliament at Westminster. He foresaw no difficulty in obtaining the amendment if the provinces were in agreement.

The prime minister hoped also that the constitutional amendment could be obtained in time to present the unemployment measure at the same session. He would not say what particular unemployment insurance scheme was contemplated or whether it would be contributory.

The letter referred to a recommendation from the national employment commission and added that the government shared "the opinion that a national employment service within federal jurisdiction is a necessary complement of any plan of national unemployment insurance."

Following is a copy of the letter addressed to the premiers, Nov. 5:

"My Dear Premier, "My colleagues and I are convinced that a national system of unemployment insurance would contribute materially to individual security and industrial stability throughout Canada and would assist in mitigating the distress incident to any recurrence of widespread unemployment."

"A strong recommendation was sent to national control of employment offices, based upon a full investigation of the unemployment situation throughout the Dominion, has been submitted to the government by the national employment commission. We share the opinion that a national employment service within federal jurisdiction is a necessary complement of any plan of national unemployment insurance."

"We believe it is most desirable that legislation establishing a national system of unemployment insurance and of public employment offices should be enacted. Should it be possible to obtain the co-operation of the governments of the several provinces toward this end, we are prepared, at the next session of parliament, to introduce the necessary measures."

"You will recall that on Jan. 28 of this year, the judicial committee of the privy council gave a negative opinion upon a reference as to whether the parliament of Canada had jurisdiction to enact the employment and social insurance act, 1936. Close attention has since been given by officials of the Dominion government to the resulting situation. We have also had the benefit of the counsel and advice of a member of the staff of the international labor office who is familiar with existing systems of unemployment insurance and who has been placed at the disposal of the government for purposes of consultation by the international labor office.

"It appears to be the general consensus of view that unemployment insurance, if it is to be effectively carried out, should be national in scope. In view, however, of the limited jurisdiction of the parliament of Canada, an amendment to the constitution would seem to be a necessary preliminary to the establishment of a national system."

"In these circumstances I am writing to the premiers of the several provinces to inquire whether their governments would be agreeable to an amendment being made to the British North America Act empowering the federal parliament to enact unemployment insurance legislation. I should be obliged if, at your early convenience, you would kindly advise me of the views of the government of (name of province)."

Grasshopper Invasion

The 1938 Plague Will Not Be As Heavy In Southern Manitoba As Expected

Winnipeg.—The 1938 grasshopper invasion into southern Manitoba will be heavier than in 1937 but not as serious as anticipated two months ago. Dr. R. D. Bird of the Dominion entomological laboratory at Brandon, said in a report to the Manitoba committee for grasshopper prevention.

Heavy flights to southwestern Manitoba last summer led authorities to believe the grasshopper eggs deposited would bring serious results next year. However, a survey by the entomological department revealed the egg lay was below the expected mark.

The 1938 infestation will be concentrated in the southwestern portion of the province. Dr. Bird predicted. A small area of severe infestation is likely in the sandy land along the Souris river.

Retreat From Shanghai

Chinese Troops Take Up New Position To Protect Nanking

Shanghai.—Shanghai fell into Japanese hands with the retreat of General Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese troops who had held out 88 days against combined Japanese army, navy and air forces.

The city was asleep and unaware of its fate when, shortly after midnight, Chinese forces began an orderly, quiet retreat toward their "winter line" protecting Nanking, the capital.

Japanese, apparently, did not learn of the retreat until 8 a.m. The withdrawal cut off the metropolis from the rest of the nation and bottled up 3,000,000 Chinese residents, 1,000,000 refugees and many thousands of foreigners.

Railroads and highways in all directions were cut or blocked by Japanese, leaving only a few foreign and Japanese vessels as the sole connection with the outside world.

Foreign communities breathed more easily, as if a long siege suddenly had been lifted. The plight of Chinese inhabitants and war refugees was considered tragic, as they have no means of escape and must reconcile themselves to a long period of isolation surrounded by Japanese troops.

BRITAIN'S FORMER LABOR PREMIER DIES ABOARD SHIP

London.—J. Ramsay MacDonald, who rose from poverty in Scotland, to become thrice prime minister of Great Britain, died suddenly aboard a cruise ship bound for South America, where he had hoped to seek rest and recuperate his health.

Dr. Alistair MacKinnon, Mr. MacDonald's son-in-law, received news by wireless of the death of the United Kingdom's only Labor prime minister. He died aboard the liner Roma in the Pacific, apparently of a heart attack.

The body will be taken off the ship at Bermuda and returned to England.

The 71-year-old former prime minister, with his daughter Sheila, sailed for South America in search of what he called "the most elusive of all forms of happiness—rest."

He had planned to visit Peru and Chile and to return when I have had enough of it."

The day after he departed, Earl Baldwin, his successor as prime minister, paid tribute to Mr. MacDonald in a public address, saying: "I never felt that Mr. MacDonald had credit given him by the country due for services he rendered it in 1931 and in the years immediately succeeding."

It was in 1931 that Mr. MacDonald formed the National government and in doing so broke with many of his old associates in the Labor party.

Prime Minister Chamberlain received news of the death shortly after addressing the lord mayor's banquet in historic Guildhall, the occasion at which a year ago Mr. MacDonald suffered a sudden collapse.

One of Mr. MacDonald's last comments of a political character was the assertion he could not believe "this war talk," a statement that bore out his year of ardent pacifism. He had earlier opposed both the South African and Great war, surrendering his leadership of Labor in the House of Commons in 1914 when the party decided to support the war.

Before sailing he said he felt faint fit but that his eyes troubled him. "I don't see as well as I used to," he said, adding he intended to "think seriously" about writing a book on his turbulent political life.

Book By Lawrence Of Arabia Exhibited In Boston

New York.—An aerial police escort guarded a thin leather-bound book priced at $500,000 on a flight to Boston, where it was exhibited at a book fair.

The volume was one of 12 copies of "The Mint" by Col. T. E. Lawrence, known as "Lawrence of Arabia," who set the price and stipulated the work should not be published generally until 1950. No copy has been sold.

AWARDS MADE FOR NOBEL 1937 PRIZE WINNERS

Stockholm.—Great Britain, France, the United States and Switzerland took major honors in the 1937 Nobel awards.

George Paget Thomson, 45, British physicist and son of Sir J. J. Thomson, who won the Nobel physics prize in 1907, and Clinton Joseph Davison, 56, American, were announced as joint winners of the physics award.

Roger Martin du Gard, 56-year-old French novelist, chiefly known for his series of novels entitled "Les Thibault," received the literature award.

Dr. Walter Norman Haworth, British chemist, and R. Paul Karrer, of Zurich, Switzerland, will divide the award for chemistry.

Dr. Haworth was singled out for his work on carbohydrates and vitamins A, B and C.

The prize for physiology and medicine was awarded two weeks ago to Prof. Albert von Szentgyorgyi, medical research worker at Szeged University, Hungary.

Thomson and Davison were honored because of their discovery of the phenomena of interference in the irradiation of crystals by electrons. Each will receive half the cash prize of 150,000 Swedish crowns ($40,000).

Born in 1892, Thomson followed the footsteps of his illustrious father and studied physics at Trinity college, Cambridge. He was a fellow and lecturer in Corpus Christi college, Cambridge, when the Great War broke out. He served in France in 1914-15.

The government soon became aware of his extraordinary knowledge in aerodynamics, and from 1915 to 1919 he worked with the Royal Air Force on various problems of aeroplanes.

After the war he returned to Cambridge. But in 1922 he accepted a professorship of natural philosophy at the University of Aberdeen, a post he held until 1930.

In 1919 he published a work on applied aerodynamics and subsequently published treatises on the atom, on wave mechanics of the free electron, and with his father, published a work on the conduction of electricity through gases.

Davison, research physicist on the staff of the P. W. Telephone laboratories, was awarded the Hughes medal of the Royal Society in London in 1935 for his joint discovery with Dr. L. H. Germer of electron diffraction by crystals. He was born in Birmingham, Ill., in 1881.

Roger Martin du Gard first won notice with publication in 1913 of his novel, "Jean Barois." He won the Prix Goncourt, most famous of French literary awards, with "Les Thibault."

Dr. Haworth, professor of chemistry and director of the department of chemistry in the University of Birmingham since 1925, was born in 1883 in Lancashire.

He was appointed as reader in chemistry at the University of St. Andrews in 1912 and in 1920 became professor of organic chemistry and became director of the chemistry department of Armstrong college, University of Durham, Newcastle.

Will Preserve Friendship

China Refuses To Renounce Her Relations With Russia

Brussels.—China will preserve her friendship with Soviet Russia—not renounce it to join any group of powers dominated by a particular philosophy, Dr. Wellington Koo, China's representative here, said.

"This was China's answer to reports from Berlin a more satisfactory peace between Japan and China might be achieved if China were to adhere to the German-Japanese-Italian anti-Bolshevik pact."

China recently signed a non-aggression pact with Russia. Koo said it contained no secret clauses. China, he added, wants to keep the friendship of all nations, particularly her neighbors.

LOOKING TO THE SWEDES

The picture of the great and rich United States of America, with 130,000,000 people and a land area embracing almost half a continent, turning to the little northern country of Sweden (population only 7,000,000) to find the secret of a better way of living, has a humorous side.

Sweden has no great resources nor any exceptional brilliance among the rank and file of her people. But the Swedes are a stubborn and placid people and nobody is going to budge them along any new trail or adventure until they are pretty sure where they are going to land up at.

Since "Sweden, the Middle Way" (Childs) was published both Canada and the United States have been sending delegations chasing over there to find out the secret of balanced living which the Swedes seem to have discovered. For a generation or so all that these two countries knew of the Swedes was that they were a tough, sea-faring people who sent many immigrants to North Dakota and Minnesota, a goodly number of whom afterwards came to Western Canada. "Squareheads," they called them. Good farmers and hard workers, they have made excellent citizens.

But it is the Swedes who stayed home who are attracting attention now. They have found a way to contrive socially without abandoning democracy. A little socialism may offer capitalism its one chance to survive. Perhaps capitalism is doomed, who knows? But in Sweden they give it a chance to succeed. On the other hand a little capitalism may keep socialism in order. It may save the bureaucrats from their presumptuous ways. —Brooks Bulletin.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

CHILDREN

When taking pictures of children snap them in a natural pose—doing something.

"STAND up straight now and look at me." "Put your hands down, darling, and smile. I want to get a good picture to send to Aunt Minnie."

Haven't you heard these two and many similar expressions on the part of parents when they are taking snapshots of their children? Let's hope you are not numbered among them for unless your child is quite apt at posing the result will be a rather uninteresting snapshot which does not do the child justice. First of all, as you know, youngsters are the cutest when they are perfectly natural. If a lot of fuss is made to get them to stand just so, or an effort is made to get them to do a certain thing, the chances are they will look too posed in the finished print.

There are two types of child pictures, I might say: just plain record pictures and the other kind you should strive to get—story-telling pictures. A little tot standing straight as an arrow with arms stiffened against the sides of the body and staring at the camera is a good example of a record picture, but snap a picture of that same little rascal making mud pies, or playing traffic policeman, and you have a story-telling picture with real human interest appeal. Children's pictures should always be taken fairly close up, rarely more than ten feet from the camera. If you have an ordinary box camera don't get closer than six or eight feet unless a portrait attachment is placed over the lens. With a portrait attachment you can get as close as three and a half feet to your subject and get sharp, distinct pictures that will show every curl and dimple. By moving a lever on the camera type box cameras, however, you can shoot as close as five feet to your subject without a portrait attachment.

With a folding camera of focusing type, the closer the subject is to the lens the more care is required in estimating the distance. Set the pointer on the distance scale at the number of feet between the lens and the child. If you change your position for succeeding pictures, be sure to change the pointer to the proper distance mark.

And watch your backgrounds. A nice, attractive background adds so much to your pictures. Telephone poles, wires, unattractive fences, garages, and what have you, often spoil an otherwise artistic, fascinating human interest picture. In fact, any prominent off-side object in the picture will detract from the interest in what the child is doing.

Here's another tip. Try to avoid having the sun shining directly in the child's eyes, for the poor little fellow can't help squinting under such conditions and neither could you. Let the sun come from the side. This gives an interesting lighting and what professionals call "round-ness."

Follow these "tips" and you'll get real joy out of your snapshots. John van Guilder

About two months ago, two Brooks fishermen were casting for pike near the irrigation head-gates, when one of the pair felt a tug and his line snapped. Several weeks later, the same pair of fishermen repaired to the same spot, when one of them hooked and landed a five-pounder, which had the lost minnow caught in its side.

Bob Jepson, 220-pound Oregonian, added another victory to his impressive number of triumphs when he defeated Stan Lewis, 210 pounds, of Nebraska, in straight falls in the main event of the wrestling programme at the local Columbus hall on Monday night. In a semi-windup, Mike Bilinsky secured two out of three falls against Wally Shervin.

A guy remarked the other day that if Aberhart were to ask his little lobby institute audience if they understood the Social Credit theory, they in an accord would nod their heads affirmatively. At the same time it's questionable if Able knows anything about it, and it is about safe to say that members of his audience know just as much.

An exchange claims that a fisherman's yarn will come under the new "Accurate News and Information Act." If his story sounds too much like the truth, his catch and equipment may be confiscated. But if the fisherman should happen to be in a position to say that in the last election he voted Social Credit, the act may be rescinded.

Upon their return they will take up residence in Hillcrest.

The attendance was fairly large, quite a number coming from Hillcrest, Coleman and Bellevue to assist in the programme ably carried out under the chairmanship of Comrade J. Rudd. The programme consisted of speeches, vocal and instrumental solos, community singing, etc., and was much enjoyed by all.

The following story is going the rounds this week. Ole, a Swede, who returned to the old country after a few years' stay in Canada, was asked by his friends how he got on. "Fine," he said. "First yob aye get be on road. Soon aye be made boss and everybody call me Ole the road boss. Then aye ban made foreman and everybody ban calling me Ole the foreman." Next aye ban moved to the office as manager, and everybody ban calling me Ale the manager. They are permitted however to select four prospective candidates and then, no doubt because they are considered by their leader to have the mentality of children of thirteen and could not be relied upon to pick their candidate, Hon. Mr. Aberhart will step into the picture and make the final selection?

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

Woman Lives In Tree

Old French Villager Has Home Inside Tree Trunk

The old woman who lived in a hole might be a fairy tale but near Rodez, France, there has been found a woman who lives in a tree. Her home is built inside the trunk. Measuring almost 54 feet in circumference at its base, the tree has been rotted at its centre. The space inside has permitted the old villager to install bed, stove and chairs, with her kitchen utensils nailed to the inside of the trunk. The tree is a European species called lile and its dried leaves and flowers, with a lemon flavor, are an ancient medicinal herb when dissolved in "killed tea." The old woman has left the upper stories of her home to the birds.

West Africa is the home of the world's smallest antelope. It stands only a little more than 12 inches high at the shoulders.

R.C.M.P. Recruiting Will Be At A Standstill For The Next Few Months

Approaching return of normal times is seen as a probable reason for a falling off in applications for enlistment in the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

In his annual report, the commissioner, Sir James MacBrien, says applicants during the year ended March 31, 1937, numbered 1,817, a decrease of approximately 47 per cent. from the previous 12-month period. Only 67 of the number who applied were taken on the force on account of a reduction in establishment.

"To all intents and purposes recruiting at a standstill," the report states, "and of the 67 men engaged 16 were for duty with the marine section, 45 as special constables and two returned to the force after leaving. In addition three special constables were engaged as regular members of the force."

The total strength of the force is 2,573, of which 92 are officers, 2,130 non-commissioned officers and constables, 131 special constables and 220 members of the marine section which looks after coastal patrol work.

The main training centre at Regina was kept busy but it was not possible to establish the proposed national training centre there. This will be available to all police forces in Canada. The project has been considered for some time but lack of building accommodation and equipment prevented its execution although some progress was made.

Far Behind The Times

Religious Sect In Ontario Town Follows Old Custom

According to the Guelph Mercury there is in the county of Waterloo a religious sect whose members still cling to the quaint old beliefs that a man's word is as good as his contract, that one should not borrow more than he intends to repay, and that the simple things of life are the best.

Queer, these people are so far behind the times. They know not the joy of instalment purchases, double dealing, onerous debt. Their beliefs set them entirely apart. Yet they live in peace and contentment, in fellowship and friendship with their neighbors, unworried by tomorrow's reckoning. And the hurrying, busy world might find the utopia it seeks in the life of these fortunate, carefree farmers.

The following notice appeared outside a small church in Virginia: "The Rev. ——— will preach here next Sunday morning and evening, after which the church will be closed for necessary repairs."

Nine million words were recorded by a single local court stenographer during the last four years. Justice may be blind but no one can accuse her of being tongue-tied.

Arms Exports

Shipments Reported To Be Small And Mostly To Friendly Countries. Canada's exports of arms and ammunition are comparatively small, it was shown in the first reports compiled under the new legislation providing for the licensing of such exports.

In the three months the licensing provisions have been operating, a total of $178,181 worth of goods have been checked out by the department of national revenue, but this amount $104,485 was made up of aircraft and parts of aircraft of a non-military type.

Of course aircraft of any kind may be used for military purposes but there were no ships or submarines in the department's classification of equipment "adapted or intended for military or naval reconnaissance or for aerial combat by the use of machine guns or artillery or for carrying and dropping bombs."

The licensing requirements became effective July 31 and the three-month period includes the months of August, September and October. In this period Argentina bought goods to the value of $84,436, the United Kingdom, $68,001; United States, $17,546 and smaller shipments, totaling $6,197 were made to Australia, Newfoundland, Brazil and Mexico.

Amendments to the Customs Act made at the last session of parliament prohibited export of arms or munitions of war except under license. Shipments to Spain have been banned.

Leading items were: Aircraft (non-military) $89,376, of which $80,956 went to Argentina and $8,420 to the United States.

Ammunition, $74,194, all projectiles and small arms ammunition and all to empire destinations, $67,921 to the United Kingdom, $4,411 to Australia and $867 to Newfoundland.

Aircraft engines, fuselages, tail units, undercarriage, units and wheels, $12,837, of which $6,432 went to the United States, $5,480 to Argentina, $550 to Brazil and $375 to Mexico.

Aircraft engines, $2,275, all to the United States.

Earth Tremors

Old Mother Earth Having A Rare Case Of Fidgets

Old mother earth has been having a rare case of fidgets, but take a seismologist's word for it—the jiggles may be better than a long spell of quiet.

Back in 1923, recalls Father Joseph J. Lynch of Fordham University, there wasn't a rumble from the earth's interior for six months. Then came the crash that swept a tidal wave over Newfoundland's Burin peninsula, dropping a goodly and rippling 13 cables from the ocean floor.

As for this year's series of grunts and grumbles, Father Lynch says: "You needn't be alarmed. We're not shaking to pieces. At least things are a good deal quieter now."

They began early in July, when the Fordham seismographs—sunk 30 feet in a vault on the campus—began to trace a series of zig-zags. With mounting frequency the nervous retchings have gone on for more than three months, but are now beginning to slack off.

It has been described most unusual series of quakes since 1930, says Father Lynch. "We don't know what has been happening or what it may portend."

The tremors jumped around the globe from Yverdon, N.J., Japan, bobbed up in Central America, the Philippines and Mexico.

Becoming Popular Again

About 49,000 Bicycles Were Manufactured In Canada Last Year

Every boy and girl loves a bicycle and that means of quick locomotion is becoming more and more popular. It is impossible to say how many there are in Canada, but some guessing can be done from the fact that about 49,000 were manufactured in Canada last year and there were over 37,000 in 1935. A good bicycle well cared for will last for very many years, so the number in the Dominion must be enormous. The old ones are in many shapes and sizes, and even some of the high speed specimens of the eighties and nineties are occasionally to be seen abroad. However, the modern safety bicycle has been pretty well standardized and the streamline idea does not appear to fit in, so the fashion is not likely to change very much. Besides the home manufactured bicycles we import a great many, chiefly from the United Kingdom—Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Clinic For Research

Liverpool Chemists To Study Subject Of High Blood Pressure

The establishment in Liverpool, England, of a clinic for research into the causes and treatment of high blood pressure is being watched with interest by health authorities in this country. The plan is envisaged as an extension of work now being carried out by three bio-chemists at Liverpool Heart hospital.

According to Dr. I. Harris, who will direct the research work in an hour, capacity, high blood pressure is responsible for a far greater number of deaths than cancer.

"And yet," he says, "it has been a Cinderella so far as research is concerned. This is partly because it is one of the most complex problems in medicine, and involves the whole mode of the patient's life, his diet, his work, and his recreation. Research by an individual working in his own laboratory is useless."

The full explanation of the premature break-up of human tissue can only be arrived at by a collaboration of the biochemist and the medical man.

What Dr. Harris is reported as saying further confirms the policy of the Health League of Canada in its educational campaigns to keep the public informed as to various diseases and to arouse the public to the need of preventive measures.

For the Liverpool authority says: "At the clinic we hope to find a cure, but much of our effort will be of a preventive character. Propaganda is essential, for as in the case of many other diseases, it is essential that it should be caught in the early stages and that the patient should not wait until broken down by kidney or arteries have broken down."

"Owing to the comparatively short time during which it has been possible accurately to diagnose blood pressure, statistics do not take very far back, but the increase in the number of cases among the middle classes gives cause for alarm, and is probably due in some measure to the strain imposed by modern conditions."

The real object of the clinic, it has been said, is to find a formula for longevity.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

CHRISTIAN WORKERS

Golden text: Let us not be weary in well-doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not. Galatians 6:9.

Lesson: Acts 6:1-10; I. Corinthians 3:10-15; Galatians 6:10; I. Timothy 6:11-21.

Devotional reading: Psalm 130.

Explanations And Comments

The Work of Christian Ministers and Christian Laymen, Acts 6:1-10. Christ Is The Only Foundation on Which to Build, I. Corinthians 3:10, 11. Paul stresses the fact that his success as a wise masterbuilder was due to the grace of God alone. Christ was the foundation on which he built, and another, Apollos, had built upon his work. Paul had planted—he had founded the church at Corinth; Apollos had watered—after Paul left he had continued the work with eloquence and fervor, Acts 18:27. But it was God who gave the increase—God alone was due the credit for the growth in numbers and in individual grace and knowledge.

Every Worker Responsible for the Quality of His Work, I. Corinthians 3:12-15. There is no other foundation on which Christ can be built save Jesus Christ, but he must give heed to the way in which he builds his superstructure. He is responsible for the material he uses. One builds with gold and silver and precious stones, with materials that are rich and durable, while another builds with wood or hay or stubble, which quickly perishes.

One great danger in all Christian work is that those who undertake it will become discouraged and discouraged too soon, and will quit while there is still much to be done. Paul warns against this danger. "Let us not weary in well-doing," for in due season we shall reap if we faint not." Jesus told his twelve disciples on sending them out to preach the gospel to all men, "Be ye faithful unto the end, the same shall be saved." And it was a sharp warning to them in his words: "No man putting his hand to the plow, and looking back, is fit for the Kingdom of God." The grace of steadfastness should be every Christian worker's.

So then, as we have opportunity, let us work that which is good to ward all men.

ALICE STEVENS' RECIPES

HOT OVEN REQUIRED FOR MAKING BISCUITS

One of the most common causes of failure in making biscuits is the oven temperature. Biscuits require a hot oven, and the temperature of the biscuits and they do not rise as well. A hot oven makes the biscuits cook quickly and they have a nice soft crust.

Biscuits should be made from a very moist dough. Biscuits which are patted out instead of being rolled are always lighter. Those that are made by hand and dropped from a spoon in place of being rolled out, are even lighter. Handle the dough as little as possible. Rolling pin is used, press very lightly. Do not turn the dough over while rolling out the biscuits, as this makes them tougher. The biscuits which are made from the second rolling are never as light as the first rolling. This proves that the more biscuits are handled, the heavier they will be. In making the dough ingredients they should be sifted three times. This mixes the ingredients thoroughly and removes all lumps and specks.

Milk or water can be added as the liquid. But the best is cream, as it is most satisfactory as the fat. A mixture of the two is good. If cream can be used, it is best. Fat can be reduced. The farm woman who has her own cream crock has a splendid opportunity to make rich biscuits.

Soda and sour milk are considered by many to make better biscuits than sweet milk and baking powder. For soda the rule is—use one half teaspoon soda for each cup of sour milk. If too much soda is used, the biscuits are yellow in color and have a disagreeable taste. For baking powder use one level teaspoon baking powder for each cup of flour. The basic recipe for biscuits can be used in making some delightful desserts.

APPLE COBBLER

Wash, peel and slice enough apples to fill a baking dish three-fourths full. Make a rich baking powder biscuit dough and have it soft enough to stir, rather than roll out. Spread over the top of the apples which have been sweetened to taste. Make some cuts in the crust to allow the steam to escape. Bake for 40 to 45 minutes.

Readers are invited to write to Alice Stevens' Home Service for free advice on home cooking and household problems. Address letters to Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermott Ave. E., Winnipeg, Man.

Live minnows can be kept by placing them in running water of the same temperature as that from which they were obtained and feeding them on bread crumbs and soft scraps.

Australia has only two persons with incomes of $140,000 or more; only one-third of the populace pay income taxes, the average yearly income among the payers being about $450.

Gold hoardings in India are such that no one can accurately estimate the amount; the common estimate, however, sets it at above $5,000,000,000.

The Waterfowl Situation

Protect Shooting Of Ducks In Breeding Grounds Of The North

From a geographic viewpoint, Hudson Bay is like a large funnel with James Bay as the spout pointing south. Then, at the extreme southerly end of James Bay is Hannah Bay, which is the spout for James Bay. Jack Miner, through his bird-tagging system, has been in touch with the natives of these territories for some 20 or more years—long before railway or aeroplane communication were thought of. It took the mail four weeks to come, part way by canoe, from James Bay to Jack Miner's home in Kingsville, Ontario.

In those early days, by constant communication with the missionaries and Hudson Bay factors, who collected tags from the natives, Jack Miner found that, starting the last of August or early September, the ducks began to come in from the vast territory east of Hudson Bay, Baffin Land and the Arctic region, all concentrated into James Bay and then on into Hannah Bay.

In other words, they follow the funnel down to the spout, and for several days the hunters would flock in the waterfowl are there by the millions. Then, as the October snow comes, the ducks would migrate out over the vast area of Ontario, Southern Quebec and to the St. Lawrence, east of the Mississippi River.

Jack Miner, knowing of this huge concentration of waterfowl in early October, realized that when the railway was extended from Toronto to Moose Factory, the waterfowl would be in by the hundreds and, possibly, would kill more birds there, than a million shooters would ever kill. The birds had left that area and spread out over Eastern Canada and the United States.

"Uncle Jack," as most Canadians call him, looked ahead, and on October 1, 1931—some 40 years ago—released an article to the press, entitled, "Consideration, Justice and Prevention of the Waterfowl Situation," in which he stated that newspapers will no doubt still have his files. It reads in part as follows:

"In less than six months, we will have two railroads carrying hunters and tourists to Hudson and James Bay. The one from the West to Hudson Bay will be the most direct, and the one from Toronto to James Bay will soon be driving the last vestige of waterfowl from the area. The slaughter of wildfowl that is sure to take place. My suggestion is to prohibit any person, other than a permanent resident of Hudson Bay territory, from taking waterfowl by rail, water or air, or being allowed to hunt in any way in this virgin breeding country. The waterfowl situation area, that is now producing sport for all North America."

Yes, Jack Miner's warning and suggestion, released six years ago. He also pointed out that there was enough territory in Canada and the United States in which to hunt and shoot waterfowl without interfering with the breeding grounds.

It would have been easy for the government to have passed legislation on this point then, but it was put off. It will be far easier to stop the slaughter now, than it will be five years hence. The longer this vital legislation is delayed, the more shooting clothes will be established there; the more money will be spent in shooting lodges, and the more opposition the government will face in putting through such legislation.

At the present time, certainly the Indian Department at Ottawa would welcome such restrictions; because, if anyone in that territory is entitled to the shooting, it is the natives; and Jack Miner's suggestion would not affect them. All it would do is to stop the shooting of the waterfowl, from taking fire-arms within 50 miles of Hudson or James Bay, as he said. "If we burn the candle at both ends, it will soon go out," and the shooting of the waterfowl, and birds at both ends of their migration, we'll soon have no birds."

World's Tallest Man

Egyptian Over Nine Feet And Cannot Stop Growing

Men who claimed the world's record height will all have to retire from the field now, Mohamed Ghazi, an Egyptian, is the latest claimant. He is over nine feet tall and he can't stop growing.

A few years ago he was perfectly normal, but, one day, while at his trade as a mason, he had a fall from some scaffolding and broke his leg. He was taken to the Alexandria Government hospital, and the next day his leg was healed, was discharged. Soon afterwards he began to grow, and has kept on growing.

By the orders of King Farouk he was taken to the Kasr el-Nasir hospital, and King Farouk paid all the expenses for special treatment. The giant had to have a special bed, made more than ten feet long.

A few could not work because his abnormal growth made him very weak, and he has been unable to eat meat. But the doctor in charge of the case says the giant would live as long as he does not develop heart trouble.

Installation of air-conditioned dining cars on American railroads has been ordered an increase in the orders for heavier meals. The diners, according to statistics.

Mrs. Wyncoop manoeuvred her mink-mantled form into the path of the social leader.

"How do you do, Mrs. Phelps?" cooed Mrs. Wyncoop. "I'm so glad to see you. We met at the Juvenile Delinquents Conference in Dubuque last year."

From her Olympian height Mrs. Phelps regarded Mrs. Wyncoop very much as if the latter lady were a juvenile delinquent herself.

"But of course," said Mrs. Phelps. "May I present my husband, Mr. Wyncoop?" petitioned Mrs. Wyncoop.

Mr. Wyncoop put out a hand like five frankfurters attached to a chop. "Glad to know you," he boomed. "Have a weeble?"

Mrs. Phelps took the hand but declined the offer.

"And may I also present my son, Master Mervin?" said Mrs. Wyncoop.

"How do you do?" said Mrs. Phelps.

Master Mervin did not tell her how he did, for his mouth was full of sausage, and a disgusting sensation was stirring beneath his buttons.

He favored Mrs. Phelps with a surly, frog-eyed look. "It is a wise to prod a hulging boy was instantly and graphically demonstrated."

After Master Mervin had been borne away, green and limp, but less bulky, the judges went into conference. The Congressman, his professional eye caught by the lavish expenditure of money on the weeble show, and not unmindful of the congressional precept that it is as easy to be a friend of a rich man as an enemy, declared himself in favor of awarding the prize to the Wyncoop entry.

The Mayor, whose feet were tired, saw no reason, stated, for prolonged debate, and expressed his willingness to agree with his honorable colleague, the gentleman from Council Bluffs. But Clara-Martha Phelps cleared her long throat and voiced a polite but emphatic dissent.

"Gentlemen," said Mrs. Phelps, "my artistic conscience will not permit me to vote for this exhibit."

"Will the lady from Des Moines kindly state her objections?" said the Congressman in his best rostrum manner.

"It's that horse," said Mrs. Phelps. "That dreadful horse! It strikes a dissonance."

She saw that the Congressman looked puzzled, so went on.

"A false note. That the machine is interesting and educational, I do not deny, but I do question the good taste of that horse. I cannot, gentlemen, see eye to eye with you."

The Congressman went into conference with himself.

What he thought was, "That stuck-up bean-pole couldn't see eye to eye with anything but a stilt-walker. But she's got a lot of influence among the women voters. I can't afford to have that ostrich against me when I campaign for senator next year. Old Wyncoop will be as sore as a stubbed toe if I don't give him the prize, but I'll square him by giving that blubber-headed brat of his an appointment to West Point. Besides Wyncoop has a senatorial bee himself, and if I hand him a lot of free publicity, consider me crazy."

Aloud he said:

"I bow to the taste of the lady from Des Moines."

The Mayor, who wanted to get home and take his shoes off, said that he saw Mrs. Phelps's point, but observed that they must give the prize to somebody.

"I thought that exhibit of the fauna of Iowa not without cultural value," said Mrs. Phelps.

"Second the motion," said the Congressman.

"Motion carried," said the Mayor. Ernest Bingley was sitting in his corner, among his array of weasels and chickadees, as silent and spiritless as if he were one of them.

He was pushed into a murky corner had risen, though heavily surprised him. He had noted, with impotent resentment, that the Wyncoops had made his horse the piece de resistance of their offering. Technically, he conceded, it was not his horse, but he felt that he had a moral claim on it.

He was sitting there, birds to the right of him, birds to the left of him, animals behind him, speculating on man's inhumanity to man, when the pro of arbiters swam into his ken.

The Mayor, an spokesman, in a speech cut short because of his aching arches, presented Ernest with a blue ribbon and a check. Ernest shyly studied his own shoestrings during this ceremony. He had prepared and rehearsed a graceful speech in the wildly improbable event that he should win, but before he could regain control of his faculties and make it, the judges had departed.

He was still standing there, check in one hand, blue ribbon in the other, in a happy daze, when the Wyncoops, including a wan and hollow Mervin, passed his booth. The sultan of sausage, and a disgusting sensation was stirring beneath his buttons.

He was pushed into a murky corner had risen, though heavily surprised him. He had noted, with impotent resentment, that the Wyncoops had made his horse the piece de resistance of their offering. Technically, he conceded, it was not his horse, but he felt that he had a moral claim on it.

He was sitting there, birds to the right of him, birds to the left of him, animals behind him, speculating on man's inhumanity to man, when the pro of arbiters swam into his ken.

The Mayor, an spokesman, in a speech cut short because of his aching arches, presented Ernest with a blue ribbon and a check. Ernest shyly studied his own shoestrings during this ceremony. He had prepared and rehearsed a graceful speech in the wildly improbable event that he should win, but before he could regain control of his faculties and make it, the judges had departed.

He was still standing there, check in one hand, blue ribbon in the other, in a happy daze, when the Wyncoops, including a wan and hollow Mervin, passed his booth. The sultan of sausage, and a disgusting sensation was stirring beneath his buttons.

He favored Mrs. Phelps with a surly, frog-eyed look. "It is a wise to prod a hulging boy was instantly and graphically demonstrated."

"No," replied Ernest. "I'm going away."

"Business?" "No."

"Well, I guess you got a little vacation coming to you," said Mr. Sloum. "Only if I was in your shoes. I'd stick around, and cash in on the ad you got winning that prize."

"No doubt you're right, Mr. Sloum," Ernest said. "But just the same, I'm going away."

"Well, I'll be blasted and buttered," ejaculated Mr. Sloum. "That'll run into money, Ernie."

"I've got some." "How much?" "Nearly three hundred dollars, counting the prize I won," answered Ernest.

"Looks like you'll have to swim one way," remarked Mr. Sloum. Ernest laughed.

"No, I can manage all right. Just about. I got it figured out to the penny," he said. "Of course, I'll have to hitch-hike part of the way, and not eat much."

"You must want to go to England powerful bad," Mr. Sloum said.

Ernest took from the chest of drawers a small picture and was about to wrap it in one of his possible shirts, when Mr. Sloum asked, "What's the gal?"

"Lucy Bingley," Ernest told him. "Relation of yours?" "Sort of."

"Let me have a look at her." Ernest handed him a small miniature painted on ivory. It showed a fresh-cheeked girl, with round, innocent eyes.

"Mighty pretty," commented Mr. Sloum. "Where does she live?" "Heaven, I guess," said Ernest. "She's been an angel for more than a hundred years."

"No fooling?" exclaimed Mr. Sloum. (To Be Continued)

For Tall Sailors

Royal Navy Will Supply Them With Longer Hammocks

Tall British sailors who find the hammocks on His Majesty's warships too short to accommodate them will apply for longer ones.

Orders issued by the Admiralty said that small stocks of longer hammocks are now available for issue on demand.

The new hammocks will be restricted to the quantities required by men of exceptional height who cannot be satisfactorily accommodated in hammocks of a standard pattern.

In Greater London alone, nearly 100,000 boys and girls became available for work every year.

Proceeds From Priceless—Family Heirlooms Take Chinese Home To Fight

War has burst open China's treasure-chests. Jealously guarded by tradition and by law. For years she has prevented her "household gods" from being transferred to alien hands for cash, states a writer in the London Daily Sketch.

But now exquisite jade carvings, beautiful tapestries, thousand-year-old vases are finding their way into English markets.

There are in London numbers of Chinese students. Many of them are very anxious to get home to China to take part in the struggle now going on. But often they cannot raise their passage-money.

Probably their parents are very rich—but it isn't possible to get money out of the country because of the general chaos.

And so they are taking the only possible way out—they are parting with their priceless family heirlooms, brought with them as a tangible memory of home. Some of these students belong to the oldest, noblest families in China. British friends are helping them to dispose of their treasures by displaying a certain number and asking connoisseurs to "private views."

Miss Jessica Northwick tells of a jade vase of the Ming period (about 1540) to which she is acting caretaker.

"This is very rare because it is hollow," she explains. "Jade is very solid hollowed out—chiefly because it is so hard—the Chinese have the secret of carving it. Old jade is harder than a diamond."

Miss Northwick, who is an authority on art as well as on puppets (she is the moving power of the "Curved Mirror" puppet theatre), also shows a bamboo, paper-thin, exquisitely carved, in relief.

It is a 10th-century incense-burner of a cherry-red bloom, and when the incense smoulders in the holder at its base the smoke floats up the hollow bamboo and appears in delicate whiffs, shaped by the carvings of budthras, horses, dogs and men through which it comes.

Ideas For License Plates

Might Be Worth Considering When Issuing New Ones

Here are some new ideas for automobile license plates—a topic of timely interest. Colorado's 1938 plates will be dipped in a solution that will make them glisten at night. The cost will be about a cent apiece. In Connecticut, drivers with a good record for five years are now given, at an extra cost of one dollar, a set of license plates bearing his or her initials. More than 8,000 have already been issued. Display of these plates marks the holder as a safe driver, and he must always be on good behavior to retain possession of them.—Toronto Star Weekly.

Modern Poison Taster

Food Is Tested Chemically At Palace In Cairo

Tall, dignified Eric Titterington—known affectionately as "Titties"—recently arrived in London on short leave from Cairo. He is the modern counterpart of the medieval poison taster. Where olden time kings had their food tasted and tested for poison by someone before eating, the modern method in hot countries is chemical and analytical. Mr. Titterington has had years of experience as the official bacteriologist at the palace in Cairo. In a big Eastern palace there are hundreds of retainers to be fed. In his time Mr. Titterington computes that he has tasted enough milk to fill the Suez Canal, and enough bread to make a few more pyramids. "Fresh fruit is always the great danger," he told an English writer. "If you are served with a slice of melon in the East you may pick up any kind of disease, but the same melons exported whole to England with their rinds broken are absolutely safe."

Mr. Titterington has amusing tales to tell of palace life in Cairo. One of the story of the guest at the banquet who became so enamored of the gold plate that he decided to drop a gold fluted shell out of the window while no one was looking, go round and pick it up from the lawn afterwards. Unfortunately it fell on the head of a sentry and was promptly returned to the palace kitchen.

World's Fastest Motorship

The Prins Albert, the newest cross-channel packet of the Belgian State Railways, has made her maiden voyage. The fastest motorship in the world, she reached 25½ knots on her trials. The ship is also notable for the fact that noise and vibration have been made imperceptible in the passengers' quarters.

A feather is one of nature's most wonderful mechanisms. The quill grows on the bird, the shaft grows on quill, the barbs grow on the shaft, the barbs grow on the barbs, and the barbs grow on the barbs.

Through the introduction of colored matter into their food, silkworms now spin threads of various hues.

Little Helps For This Week

Behold I am with thee and will keep thee in all places whithersoever thou goest. Genesis 38:15.

Why should you care and sorrow? Why sit in nameless fear and sorrow? God will mark out thy path tomorrow. In His best way.

The best place is wherever He puts us, and any other would be undesirable because it would be our choice and not God's. Do not think about distant events because the uncertainty about the future is unwholesome for you. We must leave to God all that depends on Him and think only of being faithful in all that depends on ourselves. When God takes away what He has given you, He knows well how to replace it either through other means or by Himself.

Just An Experiment

Idea Of Preacher Gave Carbonic Acid Drinks To World

Many billion bottles of pop and incalculable amounts of ice cream soda are now sold the year around because a Nonconformist preacher with a delight in chemical experiment found a crude means of introducing carbonic acid gas into still water more than a century ago. The great Dr. Joseph Priestley, whose mind, everframing with the liberal ideology of the later eighteenth century, also persuaded well water to bubble like champagne and thus became, quite absent-mindedly, the great-grandfather of the soda fountain, itself about a century old.—New York Herald-Tribune.

The wild cucumber develops its seeds on spring-like pods. When ripe, the springs curl up suddenly, shooting the seeds into the air.

Louis Cecchini returned from Nelson the early part of the week.

The Enterprise has a Bible that has never been half as "hard hit" as Aberhart's.

An exchange refers to Aberhart's church as the Pathetic Babbie Institution.

The city of Cranbrook raised over $400 cash toward the Prairie drought area fund.

The first real snowfall of the season came along on Friday last. In about 36 hours around 15 inches was recorded.

Monday's Albertan referred to Aberhart's bible institute as the "Calgary Porphetic Bible Institute." Should have been "pathetic."

Twenty-one of the crew of 28 of the Greek freighter Tzeny Chandris, which foundered off the coast of Virginia, were rescued from lifeboats.

A clever kid at the local school remarked: "If twenty feet of an iceberg is above water, the rest of it must be below."

Frank Collicutt, well known Crossed-farmer and stockman, has been elected president of the South Alberta branch of the People's League of Alberta.

Mr. Justice Ives has been granted a six-months' leave of absence, his first holiday in about twelve years. He hopes to visit Honolulu and perhaps the Old Country.

Reduction of the total public debt of Alberta in the six months' period April 1 to September 30, 1937, from $158,730,493.36 at March 31, to $157,984,176.09, a net decrease of $746,317.27, is recorded in a six months' statement of provincial financing released Thursday by Hon. Solon Low, provincial treasurer.

Mrs. Mary McPhail, widow of D. L. McPhail, who died about fourteen years ago, passed away in Los Angeles on November the 13th, aged 77. Mrs. McPhail up to a few years ago was a resident of the Nanton, Alberta, district, and both were residents of Fernie for a few years prior to 1901.

Folk nowadays expect their prayers to be answered immediately. In the old days a girl would get down on her knees and ask for a loving husband; then patiently wait years for him to appear. But nowadays a girl no sooner finishes a prayer like that than she looks under the bed for results.

The provincial government is contemplating taking over the treatment and hospitalization of infantile paralysis patients next year, and may make provisions for this service in the next budget. Hon. Dr. W. W. Cross, minister of health, stated Tuesday. This year there were 162 cases in Alberta. He stated it was unthinkable for the province to contemplate state medicine, as this would cost $11,000,000 yearly. Last year the province assumed responsibility for the care and hospitalization of tubercular patients.

The Ladies' Aid of the Hillcrest United church will hold their annual bazaar in the church on the afternoon of Saturday, November the 27th, from 3 to 6 p.m. Bear this date in mind. [28-1f]

About twenty-five carloads of cattle were shipped out of Lundbreck during the week.

It is expected that the appeals of Unwin and Powell will be heard early in January.

The dance, billed for Nov. 19th at Lundbreck, for the benefit of the Christmas Tree fund, has been postponed to the 26th.

A man who died recently in Montreal left all he had to an orphan asylum. It consisted of twelve little children.

George Mannion has been elected president of the Michel Local, U.M. W. of A., with J. Tupper as vice-president.

Latest report from Edmonton states that Unwin has decided to withdraw his appeal against Mr. Justice Ives' sentence of three months' hard labor.

Some folks are wondering why Rev. Roy Taylor, M.L.A., is still hanging on to his job, after declaring himself as opposed to the Aberhart press bill. Others have been kicked out for less than that.

Never happened in Alberta before 1935-37, that it was necessary for the premier and his cabinet ministers to journey to the various constituencies to help out his thirteen-year-old adults in selecting candidates for election.

The Drumheller Review remarks: Ponoka is a good place for the old Liberals who sent Premier Aberhart twenty-five dollars. They should bring those alleged Liberals into the asylum, and let some of the other boys out.

Harry Sommers and family left the early part of the week for Castlegar, B.C., where Mr. Sommers has secured a position and where the family will in future reside. The residence left vacant by the Sommers family will be occupied by Albert Gale and family.
